The Administration of Abraham Lincoln

PRESENT COMMENTS IN ENGLAND

Nothing is better known than the fact that English opinion in regard to American affairs has been wonderfully changed since the collapse of the rebellion. Having no faith in the stability of the Union, perhaps secretly desiring its destruction, many Englishmen naturally sympathized with the parties arrayed against our common country. It is therefore not a little interesting now to note the rapid change of opinion in England. Indications of a more friendly relation are shown in the recent change of the spirit of the press. Mr. Raymond's History of Abraham Lincoln's Administration has among the rest done much in the way of converting the tone of the periodicals and the private opinions of many individuals.

The Athenæum, whose past unfavorable position is known, in reviewing this work expresses itself in the following manner:

A singular, sad, a humorous man, full of originality and character, is the subject of Mr. Raymond's pen. Tall, unwieldly, gaunt in look, wabbling in motion, hunched in hip, with huge jaws and chin, strong cheek bones, broad lines, wan color, big ears, and shaggy brows, round all of which bristle a dark thin stubble of hair—such was the visible Abraham Lincoln of the strange crisis. Only a pair of a dreamy eyes, now dropping with weight of care, now lightening with glad for laughter, told of the kindly nature, the sympathetic heart within that outward, almost forbidding crust. For many months after his name had become a household word with us in England, we thought of him chiefly (apart from his politics and his position) as a jester, a shrewd story teller, a new edition of Sam Slick; we had no idea of his more serious side of character, of his abstraction, his melancholy, of what the Puritans would have called his inwardness. We thought him Yorick; we had no suspicion that he was also Jacques. Yet this quaint solemnity of aspect was the side of him which struck his countrymen most strongly, and while his enemies in London were describing him as a jovial buffoon, his enemies in Washington were representing him as a morose fanatic. But the two extremes of mirth and sadness seemed to meet by natural appointment in this singular man.

History was not less strange than his figure and his character. He was born in a hut and lived in a stately palace. He could hardly spell simple words, and he governed by his wisdom nearly half the world. He was a Southern man white, and he lived to champion the North and to abolish slavery in the South. He was a laborer, a rail splitter, a boatman, a grocer, but a private soldier; he was also a lawyer, a surveyor, a captain of volunteers, a postmaster, a member of Congress, and President of the United States. His origin was so obscure that the place of his birth is not known; yet he conducted a great war as Commander in Chief and signed the edict of Emancipation. He is called the Moses of the negro race and the second Father of his country. By common consent he is placed in the great muster roll of fame by the side of Washington.'

Entering upon the presidential career of Mr. Lincoln the Athenæum says:

When Lincoln went to Washington as President the Southern men were already in revolt, meaning to carry out their pet idea of founding a Slave Empire from the Potomac to the Rio Grande. Privately and personally Lincoln was opposed to slavery, believing it to be bad in principle and in practice. 'If anything in this world is wrong, slavery is wrong,' was a saying constantly on his lips. As the advocate of free soil, he had been elected President. But it bound by his opinions, and by the feelings of his clients, not to encourage the peculiar institution, not to allow its increase within the territories of the republic, he was also bound, and fully admitted his obligation, not to interfere with it where it had legal standing, but to leave it as he found it, either to grow or fade as time, argument and commerce might determine its uncertain life. These views of his duty were accepted by him in evident good faith. In Congress he had voted against the introduction of slavery into the territories. It was he said, a local fact, a local curse. To hold men in bondage was one of the acquired rights of certain States, not one of the original rights of man. That this right belonged to the soil and not to the inhabitance had once been held an incontestible fact, whatever conclusions might be drawn from it; so that it was allowed on all sides that a Virginian could not hold slaves in New England, and that a New Englander could hold slaves in Virginia. Yet this fundamental fact, sound in law and in philosophy, had been brought into dispute by the fugitive slave law, which enabled a slaveholder to retake his human chattel on free soil, free soil no longer since the power of recapture and recovery implied ownership. It was to the action of this abominable law, an outrage on the most sacred feelings, the most cherished principles of millions of men, our own equals in refinement and education, in susceptibility, that all the miseries and ultimately all the glories of America must be traced. It produced the exaggerations of Uncle Tom; it promoted the excitement of the Underground Railway; it excused the madness of John Brown; it evoked the radical spirit of the North, and put Southern pretensions to the test. The passage of that act had been a great triumph for the South, for it made the free States partakers in the iniquities while they had no share in the profits, of her crime. Lincoln's election was a protest on the part of these violated free States that they would no longer willingly act as bailiffs and jailers for the South; and the Southerners understood it; they prepared to quit a Union in which they could no longer dictate the law, and they proceeded with a fiery zeal to found that Slave Empire on which they had set their hearts.'

And yet how was it that the opinion prevailed so largely in England that the North was fighting for empire and the South for independence? The same paper explains and excuses this error in the following manner:

At the first outbreak of the war the Northern men were willing to keep the slavery question very much out of sight. They had to act by the law, and the law gave them no control over slavery in the seceded States—except so far as they could make it a matter of war. They clung to the theory of State Rights and tried to ignore the rebellion and secession as actual facts. Their sole object was to restore the Union, and Lincoln, though it was said against his feelings, declared a hundred times that as President he was neither for slavery nor against slavery, but only against disunion, a thing prohibited by statute and fatal to the republic. As the first magistrate he was here on his true ground; but this very strict adherence to law was a great disadvantage to him as a politician, for while the people were fighting only against the slavery war, he had to appear in his public utterances as though he were indifferent to the great issues of his own conflict. He said it was, to his enemies, and the one uniform cry arose that the battle was not for freedom, but only for territory; that the North was fighting for empire and the South for independence. That this was an error the men who made the mistake must be now convinced; but in the early months of the war and in fact until the emancipation edict came out, it was an error which honest and liberal men were apt to fall into.

In August 1862, Lincoln wrote in a letter to Horace Greeley the following:

'My paramount object is to save the Union, and not either to save or destroy slavery. If I could save the Union without freeing any slaves I would do it; and if I could save it by freeing all the slaves I would do it; and if I could do it by freeing some and leaving others alone, I would also do that.'

These declarations, says the Athenæum, were necessary because it was evident that the first magistrate was bound by his oath to uphold the writ of law, and at a moment not to be denied not to be set aside, so that these necessary explanations were sure to mislead many men at a distance from Washington, liberal men who in London and Paris might wish to keep faith with Lincoln. In scale of men who would pledge their principal and conscience to slavery high above their feeling for a foreign government. When the progress of events enabled Lincoln to see that liberty and the slave rebellion must stand and fall together, and his insight into facts gave him the courage to decree the abolition of slavery as a measure of war, the hearts of liberal men in Europe returned with a singular rapidity to their first hopes and hat s

The year 1863 opened with this proclamation, one of those measures which take their place at once not merely in the history of a single State but in the larger story of mankind. With this act of liberation the name of Abraham Lincoln, rail splitter and President, will be forever associated. It is the kind of glory that has no drawback and the brightness of which can never fade.'

A CINCINNATI JURY.—A Cincinnati jury has awarded Isaac Young, a colored man of the city, eight hundred dollars damages for having been ejected from a street car in pursuance of a general rule of the corporation. It did not appear that he had received any serious injury from the expulsion, and the Court charged the jury that plaintiff was entitled to compensation only for the slight and temporary inconvenience he sustained. But the jury—as juries sometimes will—filtered a little justice into the Judge's law, and gave a verdict representing, perhaps, the amount they thought the corporation ought to pay for its contemptible outrage on a respectable citizen. We trust the juries will persevere till the corporations are brought to their bearings. How about Philadelphia?—New York Tribune, Nov 28th

LORD NAPIER.—Lord Napier, the predecessor of Lord Lyons at Washington, and subsequently British Embassador at St. Petersburg and Berlin, has been appointed to succeed Sir E. Denison as Governor of Madras. Lord Napier, whose Scottish intellectuality is rather too aggressive for the red tape restrictions of diplomatic life, is probably one of the first, if not the first, English Embassador ever transferred from that career to an Indian Governorship. His Lordship will have a heavy task in Madras, where the army is much incensed at being placed on the "irregular" footing, the civil service so small as to be a coterie, and the people but just recovering from the pauperizing effect of annual settlements of the land tax. His first and rather irksome duty will be to ascertain the real temper of the coast army, which though not so strong as Bengal, has behind it the Nizam's forces, a fierce Mussulman population, and some 14,900 Arabs encamped in the Deccan.

Morals in Politics.

In a late number of the Nation, a very able journal recently established in New York, we find an article headed "The Democratic Collapse" which contains the following pointed remark:

"The two great divisions of our political world will consist hereafter, not exactly of the knaves and of the honest men, but of those who think the great laws of morality are good political guides, and those who think they are for political purposes of little or no consequence."

Here, in a single brief sentence, the line which separates the political parties of the United States is distinctly drawn. The position of each of the parties is accurately defined. Ranged on one side are those who think that the disassociation of politics from all considerations of morality ought to be complete, and on the other those who recognize the truth that every political measure ought to conform strictly to the rules of right, and who think, as one of the greatest statesmen of the last century observed, that any policy which is not fully supported by justice and morality, is no policy at all.

It is a matter of the greatest amazement to every candid and conscientious mind, how any man or any party can longer suppose that what is wrong in morals may be perfectly right in politics. Hitherto parties have often acted on the principle that politics and morals were not made for each other. There is still one party, (now happily powerless in all sections of the country,) which stigmatizes every remark about political rectitude as "Puritan cant," and which in every measure it advocates, gives an illustration of its hostility to the idea that nothing can be safe in politics which is not founded on justice and right.

We do not say that those who compose one party are all men of immorality and that all the members of the other are persons of moral rectitude; but we do mean to say that in its general policy one party utterly ignores the principles of right and wrong, while the other, though not always standing on the ground it ought to occupy, does nevertheless endeavor to shape its course in conformity to the demands of justice, and to recognize and maintain, rather than ignore and destroy, the rights of men.

There can be no doubt, which of the two parties thus separated by this broad distinction, will hereafter succeed. The country has paid too dearly for the lessons it has lately learned, to again subordinate its moral sense to mere considerations of party policy. It will not relapse into its old habit of carelessness about the morality of the course it pursues, but will try to adhere to the principle that in politics as in all things else, it is of the utmost consequence that the great laws of [illegible] prevail.

[illegible] in the Mobile Register, who proclaims [illegible] a great friend of President Johnson's policy of reconstruction, indulges in a rather sweeping proposition for the settlement of the negro question. "If," he says, "we had the negro [illegible] properly disposed of, by the utter eradication of the element from our [illegible], we would be the freest and most blessed people on earth. May the happy days soon come when [illegible] shall be known only as a curiosity for exhibition."

This writer, we doubt not, is one of those whom [illegible] proclaimed that the whole Yankee race was to be [illegible]. We all [illegible] how hot these fellows were for the "utter eradication" of every element that opposed the chivalry. The Yankees stood between them and freedom and [illegible]; hence the whole race was to be destroyed or made to bear the burdens of slaves. This little scheme met with considerable opposition from the [illegible] Yankees afterward, and in fact, failed entirely. But the "Southern gentleman" still holds to the [illegible] principle that somebody is to be "eradicated" or "exterminated." That [illegible] must be [illegible] in the case of the obnoxious "negro element." This purpose is altogether worthy of the [illegible] and cruel [illegible] of the "aristocracy" of other days.

We [illegible] that the Review has picked up a term which was in use ten years ago among the vile spoken of its party—that in fact, it calls its opponents "Black Republicans." The Review editor now loses no opportunity of using this expression. He presents the term in endless repetition, and though he tries hard to give it some little diversity by changing the connection in which he uses it, he [illegible]. Speaking of the efforts of the [illegible] poets of his day, Pope said:

"Here one poor word a hundred clenches makes,
And [illegible]"

The words "Black Republican," have lately been played upon at least half a hundred times in each number of the Review. In the next issue of that paper we shall no doubt see its editor taking some "new meanders" in order to introduce it again. It's "powerful argument" for the "Democracy."

ON "DEMOCRATIC" AUTHORITY.—The California papers have been quoting a foolish story from the Walla Walla Statesman to the effect that the Legislature of Oregon at the late special session contemplated electing a United States Senator to succeed Nesmith; purposing thus to avoid the hazard of submitting the matter to the people next June lest a "Democratic" Legislature might then be chosen. We would recommend our California friends not to look to the Copperhead papers of Washington Territory for information concerning the plans and purposes of the Union party of Oregon. Union editors ought to know that "Democratic" authority on such subjects is not the most reliable.

LARGEST VINEYARD IN THE WORLD.—A California journal says that the Buena Vista Vineyard, in Sonoma county in that State, is the largest in the world. It consists of 6,000 acres, with 171,000 vines planted previous to 1865, and 700,000 planted or to be planted, this year. Last year the yield was 41,500 gallons of still wine, 60,000 gallons of sparkling wine, and 12,300 gallons of brandy. One hundred men are constantly employed, and double that number during the vintage. There are 8,000 fruit trees, and large varieties of grapes.

TO BE PAID WHEN DUE.—Some of the "Democratic" journals insist that the United States should assume and pay the rebel debt. Now when this debt was contracted, the agreement was that it should be paid when the South had achieved its independence. We suggest, therefore, that these terms be adhered to, and that the rebel debt be paid when it falls due and not before.

RUMOR OF A FIRE AT FORT DALLES.—We hear a rumor to the effect that a fire occurred at Fort Dalles some days ago, burning the quarters occupied by the officers and soldiers of the garrison. If this be true the loss is quite heavy. The buildings were erected some years ago at a large cost to the Government.

Judge Sanderson's majority in the recent judicial election in California is 6,448. About half the usual vote of the State was polled.

OHIO.—The official majority for General Cox, Union, is 30,000.

The Sioux Indians.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—The Herald's telegram says: A letter from General Sully dated from Sioux City, to the Indian Bureau, states he has just arrived from Fort Rice, on the Missouri river, and reports that large bands of Indians are gathered about the latter locality. They apparently desire to preserve a friendly feeling with the whites. The chiefs agreed that their tribes were to make immediate restitution of property stolen in the recent expeditions, and also to deliver up certain Indians who were guilty of shedding blood on recent thieving forays.

A communication from the Superintendent of Indian Affairs of the District of Mexico, represents things in a most unfavorable light, and reports that the Indian population in that country are determined on an outbreak, and says they have already begun to enter the smaller towns and drive off cattle in the day time. The cause of this mischief is said to arise from scantiness of their supplies from the Government during the last two years. The military force has been decreased so much that the Indians no longer fear it. As an instance he cites that 8,000 Navajo Indians are under the guard of 400 soldiers. The former began to show a disposition to turn the tables by becoming captors.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—The Herald's telegram says: Inasmuch as the marine corps has officers enough for a brigade it is probable that the regiment now constituting the corps will be placed on a footing with a heavy artillery regiment and incorporated in the regular army. Rebel Secretary Mallory Comes to his Senses.

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—Ex-rebel Secretary of the Navy, Mallory, writes a letter from Fort Lafayette to the citizens of Florida and says all who study the strides of public sentiment on the subject of slavery during the last quarter of a century cannot fail to see that with or without the proposed amendment to the Constitution slavery can never be re-established within the American Union. It is idle to speculate upon the advantages or disadvantages of freedom to the negro. The fact is not to be ignored that he is a permanent element of the Southern population. With regard to Florida, all schemes of colonization are useless. He favors the admission of negro testimony in the courts but declares him habitually untruthful. In regard to returning to the Union he says it is a [illegible] frankly accepting the result or acknowledging defeat.

Over half of this freight went to Colorado and the remainder to different parts of Utah, Montana, Nevada, Idaho and Mexico. Total capital invested in this business over $6,000,000. The overland coaches which leave and arrive here daily, have taken out and brought in over 4,000 passengers and brought here $1,400,000 in specie. Freighters think the trade of 1866 will be nearly double that of last year.

Simultaneously Roberts replied to the committee who waited on him that he did not recognize the legality of the Congress, and that he was willing that the books and papers of the Senate should be examined. THE DANGER.—In our last issue we called attention to the crusade being made by the radical Abolitionists in Congress upon the Federal Constitution and upon our form of republican government in every material popular feature.—Confederate Democrat.

According to the following from the Columbus (Ga.) Sun, reconstruction seems to be working admirably in Georgia:

"Preparations have now been completed to have a chain gang of the idle negroes found in Columbus. All colored people, who have no visible means of support, are to have a ball and chain attached to them and made to work hauling the fortifications around the city, the city to feed them the while."

THE FLAG TO CHANGE HANDS.—We learn that the Sacramento Flag, newspaper has been bought of D. O. McCarthy by O. M. Clayes, State Printer and proprietor of the Stockton Independent, that the negotiations are all completed, and that the transfer will be made next Saturday. Ben Baugh present editor of the Independent, and an excellent one at that, will edit the Flag hereafter. If conducted as well as the Independent has been, it will do.—Sac. Bee, Dec. 28th.

ONE THING MORE WANTED.—The South is now rid of slavery, but there still remains one other institution which, if she would become peaceful and prosperous, she must cast out. This "institution" is the "Democratic" party. The South is already abolitionized, now let her put off this last incubus, and her regeneration will be complete.

LETTER FROM OWEN LOVEJOY.—One of the last letters written by Owen Lovejoy, dated at Washington, in March, 1864, has been communicated to the Washington Republican by ex Governor Hahn, of Louisiana, to whom it was addressed. The following are extracts:

We cannot go to the bottom with the granite, in order to build, without giving the elective franchise to the negro. I am satisfied if we stop short of that it will be found that our house is built upon the sand, and that when the floods come and the winds blow, and the rains descend it will fall, and great will be the fall thereof. The sense of justice which has been awakened in the nation by the rebellion will not rest satisfied to have forgiven rebels who have fought to overthrow the Government drive away loyal black soldiers who have fought to sustain it. It is not necessary at first all should vote. You can allow those who can read and write to vote, or you can allow soldiers to vote. The privilege of voting given to the latter class, to wit: the soldier would commend itself I think to the whole nation. You may think this is owing to my overweening anxiety for the blacks, but it is not that alone, nor chiefly. I am satisfied that Providence will not let us settle this question until we settle it on the foundation of equal justice to all, in accordance with the principles of the Declaration of Independence and of the Constitution, which knows nothing of black or white, rich or poor, but regard the rights of men, as such, as sacred.

I was much gratified the other day, in conversation with the President, to find that his views on this subject accord with my own. He does not feel that he can require this as a delegate; I requested him to. Still he desires it to be done by the action of the people themselves.

If Louisiana takes the lead I think all the other States will follow and then we shall have settled this question on deep and broad foundations, against which the gates of hell cannot prevail. The number of those who are at first admitted to the privilege of the elective franchise does not to me seem essential, for if you let any portion of the colored people vote the rest will follow in time.

I had a conversation with Governor Johnson, of Tennessee, on this subject. He feels right personally. I do hope you will see your way clear to take the lead in this matter. You will thus not only do a good thing for your country, but immortalize your name, for I am satisfied the nation will grow to this, if it has not already reached it.

BRAGG.—It is stated that when Gen. Bragg was in command of Augusta, Ga., last winter, Jeff Davis telegraphed to him "to hold the State at all hazards, stop up the roads, destroy the supplies and crush Sherman." At the close of the dispatch the rebel President inquired, "What is your available force for this purpose?" Gen. Bragg promptly replied, "Five proclamations and one brigade."

Some of the Eastern States paid very heavy bounties to volunteers during the late war. New Hampshire furnished, under two calls in 1863 and four calls in 1864, 17,282 men. To them were paid in the aggregate, exclusive of Government bounty the sum of $9,635,312—an average of $557 59 to each man.

It was announced from Washington on the 25d of November that Judge McGrath and Mr. Seddon, prisoners in Fort Pulaski, and Gov. Lubbock, imprisoned in Fort Delaware, had been released on parole.

[illegible] —The Stockton Independent of late date [illegible] the city of Sacramento the following bouquet [illegible] There is probably [illegible] in the world where the citizens [illegible] as the people of Sacramento [illegible] of checking progress, seemingly to [illegible] determination [illegible] ahead in spite of every [illegible]. The natural resources of that city are not greater than that of Stockton but so long as they wake and [illegible] their own business elsewhere [illegible] they lose no time in availing themselves of the advantages which surround them. To guard against damage to property from overflows they have built a substantial levee but are raising a large [illegible] of the city to the level of the top of the embankment. Notwithstanding the fact that the city is largely in debt and the people heavily taxed something like five per cent of the annual tax is applied [illegible] and the work of filling up grading and [illegible] streets raising buildings and erecting new [illegible] goes on vigorously and without an opposing murmur. A day spent in the city convinced us that the [illegible] have no time to spare in studying how long they [illegible] sleep and live, but employ their heads and hands in [illegible] to see how much they can accomplish in a lifetime, [illegible] from present appearances they will succeed in leaving [illegible] them admirable marks of their skill and an [illegible] record of their industry. At a single glance a [illegible] can perceive that the spirit of enterprise pervades the minds of the people of Sacramento is of an [illegible] broad and comprehensive character and marked [illegible] unity of effort and idea on the part of all. In [illegible] endeavors to build up a commercial emporium [illegible] join hands and pull together ignoring those party [illegible] and bickerings which in many places often [illegible] nip enterprise in the bud and check the progress of work necessary for the general prosperity.

[illegible] Boats.—It must be conceded that in some [illegible] of the upper country—an appellation which covers [illegible] region east of the Cascade range of mountains—[illegible] lives a sharp set of men. A case was recently cited [illegible] how they work it to open up a few ribs [illegible] a certain ranch or hotel by the wayside. A [illegible] corpulency is evidence of his good naturedness, [illegible] to collect a bill of $100 of a former patron who [illegible] a few miles from U[illegible] on the Columbia river. (It won't do to spell the name of the place [illegible] no doubt [illegible] rival would pitch into U[illegible].) He hired a poor horse but it was the best he could get for the purpose of visiting his delinquent customer. Riding out a short distance he met a man with whom he was acquainted and whom we shall call B. and [illegible] if he knew where he could find A. the debtor. "Yes," said B., "take this trail and ride so and so," the windings of which are not at all pertinent at [illegible], "and you will find him." Mr Creditor thanked [illegible] for the directions given by his friend proceeded as [illegible] and after riding until late in the day with [illegible] but a succession of hills, gulches, ravines etc. [illegible] that he was on the wrong track but [illegible] confidence in B. continued his journey hope[illegible]. Finally night came on; it was a cold night too, [illegible] had neither blankets nor grub. This appeared [illegible] and he was at last obliged to sleep with one eye [illegible] which may [illegible] account for his finding out that [illegible] sold. He next day posted back. Reaching a [illegible] the day [illegible] he learned to his [illegible] that had he kept on he would have fetched [illegible] as the trail was one that had been used in [illegible] by the proud monarchs of the wilderness and [illegible] no termination. B. felt that could be induced [illegible], the ranch upon which he had located [illegible] valuable property, and hence to open [illegible] must direct people to travel over it. B. [illegible] by our friend on his return, and it is well, [illegible] him, that he was not. As to the $100, that [illegible] remain on the books of the concern for [illegible].

[illegible] —Mr John Everest, leader of the [illegible] has tendered the thanks of the [illegible] Band to Mr A. B. Richardson, auction[illegible] of a uniform set of caps given during [illegible] tokens of his appreciation of the city [illegible] We are glad to hear of this mark of appreciation [illegible] Richardson, to those so much [illegible] to see it imitated. The Mechanic's Band [illegible] of such favors. They live among us, and [illegible] them very many little incidents would be [illegible] to show us all that a city without [illegible] were indeed a dull place. The Mechanic's Band was organized some three years ago, [illegible] as we fight, and by unity of efforts its [illegible] quite a [illegible] direction in the line of [illegible] they are only enabled to [illegible] during certain evenings [illegible] may be favorable, but they have secured a [illegible] corner of Front and Alder streets, and [illegible] be heard in the study of the [illegible]. We hope they may live long to continue [illegible], and that [illegible] may be as grateful to them individually as [illegible] is grateful to the mind or the [illegible] on any [illegible] they appear to arouse or awaken the public [illegible] is entitled not only to the thanks of [illegible] but to the thanks of the citizens generally, for [illegible] on this occasion. The caps are really of [illegible], and were made here in the city, by Mr. A. [illegible] fact worth taking notice of.

[illegible] Court.—There was a case before Recorder [illegible] yesterday full of pity. A man by the name of [illegible] was on trial for stealing $1,200 from Todd & [illegible] at the Franklin Market. He had gone to the [illegible] was temporarily secreted, on [illegible] had cut open a valise, and [illegible] finding it. After getting [illegible] he sat down and [illegible] over the matter [illegible] minutes, as to which he had better take [illegible] the situation of his wife and family, [illegible] of the character were strug[illegible] him, when he heard footsteps [illegible] in the [illegible] of the room. He hid [illegible] the bed, and the [illegible] came in upon him, Mr Wyman, stumbled [illegible]. On asking what he was wanting or doing [illegible] that he had Wyman's [illegible] and [illegible] in which Hall [illegible] in Court, and the truth being substantiated [illegible] family were in needy circumstances [illegible] called forth [illegible] for him, but he had committed a flagrant [illegible] law, and was of course held to [illegible] at the [illegible] Court.... John O'[illegible], d. d., was committed [illegible] two days.... John Conway, d. d., paid his [illegible] charged.

[illegible] Lectures.—Right Rev. T. F. Scott, D. D., [illegible] Rev. B. C. Lipp[illegible], A. M., Rev. [illegible] Rev. H. C. Benson, D. D., J. H. Stinson, [illegible] A. C. Gibbs, Hon. Wm. Strong, A. M., C[illegible] and Dr. Wm. H. Watkins, have [illegible] to [illegible] each before the Portland Academy and [illegible] the course [illegible] on Tuesday [illegible] 16th. The [illegible] will be free to all [illegible] to others a charge of $2 will be [illegible]. The receipts will [illegible] of a library for the Institution [illegible] be no more agreeable method of passing an [illegible] at the same time an institution in which all [illegible] will be benefitted by attending this [illegible] Dr Wm H Watkins will deliver the [illegible] on the subject of "The Anglo-Saxon race—[illegible] and its Power."

[illegible] Recently a swarthy son of Erin [illegible] Sheriff's office with a document purporting [illegible] which he could gain admittance to the [illegible] to see a friend. The Sheriff read the [illegible] asked the applicant to read it—when [illegible] an error for which "some wag" was [illegible] it was not only an invitation for the [illegible] him to the aforesaid jail, but also, if all [illegible] to [illegible] to authorize him to kick the [illegible] out of doors. The Sheriff resorted to milder [illegible], however, and merely informed Patrick that the [illegible] was worth[illegible]. At this the latter became [illegible] and went off muttering vengeance on the head [illegible] author of the pun. He was inclined [illegible] the powers that existed at the jail, in his [illegible] to gain admittance as he "had the papers [illegible] him in," but he fell [illegible] on the general [illegible].

[illegible] —We happened into the M. E. Sabbath [illegible] afternoon, and were much gratified to [illegible] large an attendance, and so much interest manifested in the welfare of the children of our city. The [illegible] of the school were rendered more interesting [illegible] by speeches from Mr. Law, Superintendent of the Presbyterian and Dr Glenn, Superintendent [illegible] Congregational Sabbath school. A beautifully [illegible] and gracefully delivered essay, by Miss Hattie [illegible] added greatly to the interest of the occasion.

[illegible] —We understand that the favorite comedian, Billy B[illegible], late of the Ward Troupe is forming [illegible] and [illegible] giving our neighbors of Vancouver [illegible] the [illegible] of fun in the thesp[illegible]. Mr. Barton is a reliable actor, is always "up [illegible]" and we wish him that [illegible] he deserves [illegible] will be well [illegible] with him and his company [illegible] they visit Vancouver.

[illegible] —At the annual meeting of the Portland [illegible] held at their Hall in this city, on the 7th [illegible] the following officers were chosen: F. S. Ostheim, [illegible]; Leo. Metzger, Secretary; Louis Water, Treasurer; —— Muck, 1st Turner; Emil Zeit[illegible] Turner; Paul Richter Steward. Trustees, S. [illegible], M. W. Hyman and Leopold Wolff.

[illegible] States Circuit Court—Deady J.—Special term [illegible] 8th, 1866. United States vs. steamship Oriflamme [illegible] libel for violation of revenue law. Decree [illegible] fine, and for recovery of the stipulated [illegible] the sureties in the delivery bond with stay [illegible] until action taken on petition for remission.

[illegible] Weather.—No finer weather need be asked [illegible] enjoyed in these parts the past few days [illegible] seems like the opening of spring, and birds chirp [illegible] in the branches of evergreen trees, while workmen [illegible] to their business pursuits giving no little [illegible] that it is yet winter.

[illegible] Day.—Yesterday being the 8th day of [illegible] anniversary of the battle of New Orleans [illegible] were displayed from the flag staffs of the city [illegible] had so many battles, and glorious achievements [illegible] so frequent of late that the 8th came near [illegible].

[illegible] —We last evening noticed a raft of 8 000 [illegible] timber float along the Salmon street dock, [illegible] part of the Willamette above this city. The [illegible] was for a large building, 200 feet front [illegible] three stories high soon to be erected on [illegible] the Court House between Taylor and [illegible] Front street.

[illegible] —The steamer John H Couch which [illegible] Astoria on Sunday brought a large amount [illegible] oysters. The latter are of the best quality [illegible] appreciated by the people, as of [illegible] been scarce in the market.

[illegible] —D[illegible] announce that the [illegible] from Califo[illegible] to Oregon would not leave [illegible] Saturday next.

Rock Crushing.—The rock crushing apparatus lately used on the wharf foot of Alder street has been moved to the wharf foot of Salmon street. The work of McAd[illegible]mizing Washington street is rapidly progressing, and promises to be a fair job.

For the Cascades.—We learn that the steamer Cascade will be dispatched as above today. It will be known to night whether the old Idaho (Columbia) can [illegible].

Willamette Theater.—The benefit of Mr Phelps was a decided success and the play last evening was [illegible] to any here for [illegible]. To night a [illegible] bill is [illegible].

What Rebel Soldiers Say.—A correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial, writing from Augusta, Georgia says:

My traveling companions from Milledgeville hither were Major W. S. Merrill, formerly of Beauregard's Staff and one Jakey an ex soldier of the one hundred and twenty fourth colored, lately disbanded at Louisville. The Major is a polished gentleman, exercises a vigorous hatred toward New England but is content to live at peace with the North and West. He is firmly of the belief that the overthrow of the rebel armies was due ultimately to their Quartermasters and Commissaries. There was an abundance of supplies in the country but they were either not gotten to the front or, when there sold privately by these officials. When his command on a certain occasion was camped on James Island, the troops, on two days out of the week, received Bacon, on the remaining two they ate—if they could catch them—rats. The men getting scant rations themselves and unable, with their worthless scrip to purchase supplies for their suffering families at home, deserted, of course, and the Confederacy went down. Coming in sight of the hills of South Carolina the Major said "We have very little use for that State in the South. Her militia always refused to leave their own State at our request, to help us against Sherman while the Georgia militia went over and fought him all the way through South Carolina. They refused both at Augusta and Savannah though to fight for both these cities was simply to fight for their own State."

Jakey tells an interesting story. When Fort Pulaski fell his master hurried him and fifteen others into the interior of the State, where he was finally sold and sent to the great salt works at Saltville, Virginia, where he was employed cutting wood. When the place was captured by General Stoneman he was taken with others into Kentucky. There he was told that he must either jine the war, or be drafted and so he concluded to jine, for "we was not going to be drafted no how." He did not like soldiering much "cause they was subject to so much exp[illegible]ment." He had been four years absent from his family without seeing any of them, and he was anxious to get to Savannah, as he had heard that his wife was terrible sick of an attack of the "slexandors and digestive chills," (the jaundice and congestive chills). He had drawn all his pay before leaving, but they still owed him two hundred dollars bounty, which he never expected to get.

What is Gained by the Loss of Slavery.—General Joseph E. Johnston, while in New York, a short time ago, said in conversation with a friend that but for slavery Virginia would now be as wealthy and prosperous as New York. Under the impulse of freedom and Northern emigration she has found out that she not only needs all her native labor, but also a large importation of laborers to develop her wonderful natural resources. The formation of emigration companies in the North to furnish the South with labor and capital necessary to produce the accustomed crops will, without a question, soon be productive of general prosperity in the country as well as benefit to laborers, who accept the inducement held out. The Southern labor enterprises undertaken in the North are full of promise. The United States Mutual Protection Company, of Washington, D. C., with the First Assistant Paymaster General at its head has already leased many valuable plantations in Northern and Central Mississippi and has many applications from Southern planters for servants and laborers. It is stated that some five hundred families are preparing to move southward in the month of January under the auspices of this association. Land owners of the South, at present in Washington City express themselves warmly in favor of these emigration movements, and promise labor and capital every possible encouragement and protection. The vast capabilities of the South for sustaining population are only just beginning to be realized. With free labor, and a country united in bonds of mutual interests, who can foretell the grandeur of our destiny as a nation.

The New Senator from Vermont.—The following is a notice of this gentleman who has been appointed to the vacancy in the Senate caused by the death of Judge Collamer:

Luke P. Poland was born in Westford, Chittenden county, Vermont, November 1, 1815, received a good common school and academic education, commenced the study of law when he was eighteen years of age, and was admitted to the bar in 1836, was Register of Probate for Lamoille county in 1839 and 1840, was a member of the State Constitutional Convention in 1843, Prosecuting Attorney for Lamoille county in 1844 and 1845, and in 1848 he was elected by the Legislature one of the Judges of the Supreme Court of Vermont, which he continued to hold by annual elections until November, 1865 when he was appointed to fill the vacancy in the United States Senate caused by the death of Jacob Collamer, whose term would have expired in 1867. Just before his appointment to the Senate he had been re-elected to the Supreme Bench, upon which he held the position of Chief Justice.

Albert Pike.—It is rumored that that famous Arkansas border rebel, who commanded a force of yelling and scalping rebel Indians at the battle of Pea Ridge, is industriously seeking a pardon, but thus far without success. Let him try again, and come in his Indian war costume, paint feathers and tomahawk, and with a string of scalps for a necklace, and let him lay all these trappings before the President, swear repentance and reform and ask for mercy, and he may get it.—N. Y. Herald.

Count A. de Gasparin, author of the "Uprising of a Great People," has sent his thoughts on the construction to this country in the form of a letter to President Johnson. Miss Booth is actively engaged in translating it for the Loyal Publication Society, which will put a copy into the hands of every Member of Congress.

Lieut. Gov. William Bross, of Illinois, who accompanied Speaker Colfax upon his recent tour to the Pacific States, and made strict and critical investigation of his subject in all its various bearings, has prepared an interesting lecture upon the great Pacific Railroad, which he will be called upon to deliver in New York at an early day.

Attention All!—Newell's Pulmonary Syrup cures all [illegible] of the chest and lungs; a trial will convince the most sceptical. It is effective and pleasant. Try it and bless yourselves and the originator.

A Slight Cold, Coughs.—Few are aware of the importance of checking a cough or "slight cold" in its first stage. That which in the beginning would yield to a mild remedy, if neglected soon attacks the lungs. "Brown's Bronchial Troches" give sure and almost immediate relief. The Troches have proved their efficacy by a test of many years and have received testimonials from eminent men who have used them.

The Gilmore-Jacques Mission to Richmond

The Boston correspondent of the Sacramento Union relates the following:

Some facts have come to my knowledge relating to the going of J. R. Gilmore (Edmund Kirke) and Colonel Jacques to Richmond in the summer of 1864 ostensibly with the purpose of bringing about peace, which have never been publicly known and may prove of interest to your readers. The statements herein may be relied on as authentic, being derived from the highest authority, both personal and documentary. Who suggested a mission to Richmond at that particular time has never been satisfactorily ascertained. I am inclined to believe that the idea originated with Gilmore, though I cannot state positively that such was the fact. Col Jacques of Illinois, who had during the previous year (1863) visited the South on private business, was desirous to go again as a peace maker but Lincoln though esteeming him highly, doubted his discreetness and refused to let him go. Gilmore was at the White House about this time, and through General Garfield's instrumentality I think, the subject was broached to him and he was urged to go. Nothing was settled at this time—early in May 1864—but soon after, June 19th General Garfield writes (I have the original letter before me) "He (the President) summed it all up by saying 'tell Gilmore to bring Jacques here and I will see him. Of course it should be done very quietly.'" Gilmore, in his conversation with the President had urged that Jacques be allowed to accompany him on his mission but the President was unwilling. At the second interview which followed the letter an extract from which was given above, it was settled that Gilmore should go, and the President gave him a pass for "J R Gilmore and friend." The two gentlemen went, and the result of their mission is matter of history. But why they were sent was never well understood and this I propose to explain. Only two hypothesis were possible. One that the President really hoped and expected to bring about peace through this mission, the other, that it was purely a political measure. The latter is undoubtedly the correct one. Lincoln had, at this time, the best possible evidence as to the disposition of the rebel Government in reference to peace negotiations. He knew that Jeff. Davis had told Rev Dr Robertson within a week, that he would entertain no proposition for peace which did not involve the independence of the South, and he had received like information from other sources. It is simply absurd to suppose that, possessed of this knowledge of the rebel temper, he should send men of little influence and no experience as statesmen or diplomatists to Richmond to negotiate a peace with Jeff. Davis. The truth is, the measure was purely a political one, and very shrewd at that. The peace party was gaining strength rapidly at the North—aided very materially by the representations of the leaders that the South was eager for peace, and that the war was prolonged by the Administration for partisan purposes. There was great danger that this feeling would spread to such an extent as to give the Democrats victory in the approaching Presidential election, and something must be done to check and destroy it. This is the secret of the Gilmore-Jacques mission. These two men were sent by the President to Richmond to obtain from Davis a definite declaration that he would have no peace that did not recognize the independence of the South. With this declaration as a weapon he might fairly hope to annihilate the peace party, and the event proved that he was right. The people of the North, convinced [illegible] to fight to the last, no longer gave ear to the peace syrens, but went to the polls on the 8th of November and recorded their refusal to grant independence to the South. Horace Greeley said that this mission and the taking of Atlanta elected Lincoln for the second time. [illegible] of Greely I am reminded of the [illegible] part he played in the business. On the 5th day of July—one day after Gilmore and Jacques quietly departed [illegible]—Horace Greeley was requested by the President to meet the rebel Commissioners at Niagara Falls. He went and participated in what the President knew all the time to be only a farce, and [illegible] to New York to learn with disgust of the Richmond mission. He realized at once that he had been made a "cat's paw" of, that the President had knowingly sent him on a fool's errand—hunting at Niagara Falls, while he made his [illegible] Richmond. But Greeley's conduct in this very awkward position was worthy of him. His only remark on finding how he had been used and how awkwardly he was placed, was "It is immaterial to me. I have no fault to find with Lincoln. He has a right to manage affairs in his own way [illegible] most people supposed him to be, and I cannot help regarding the Richmond mission as a master stroke of genius. Of course it should be done quietly," he says, and it was done quietly. Not a man in the country, I believe, knew of the movement at the time Gilmore and Jacques started for Richmond, except these two, the [illegible], possibly Secretary Seward, Gen. Garfield and one editor in New York, who was bound not to divulge the secret. Whether the measure was a stroke of genius or not, it certainly had a powerful influence on the [illegible] of the country.

[illegible]—It is curious to notice [illegible] in its [illegible] Tennessee [illegible] rebs, [illegible] which of [illegible] the last de[illegible] an's school- [illegible] pressing pas- [illegible] So they [illegible] reduced it to [illegible] Gen [illegible] immediate [illegible] regarded, a [illegible] the [illegible] homans, with what success we shall presently hear. This little [illegible] sufficiently illustrates the animus of a certain class. While you are expecting them to reconstruct a State, they are burning school-houses. It is very suggestive.

For my own part, we are ready to confess, after a pretty long experience of the folly of mankind, that we have never heard or read of anything so [illegible] no limit to [illegible] white man, [illegible] his safety [illegible] kinds of his [illegible] almost [illegible] should prefer the [illegible]borhood of [illegible] to [illegible] cows, or sheep or horses. Ignorance and slavery were compatible, and of a piece, but ignorance and freedom will produce nothing better than license, and the hard tyranny which it necessitates. Unless the freedmen's school houses are to be safe and sacred as churches, not destroyed but multiplied, not defiled but adorned, not degraded but glorified, we can hope for no peace, no progress and no prosperity. It is the utter blindness to this truth in every free State long since recognized and liberally acted upon which is producing local troubles, and making the future difficult and dubious. It is like the last flurry of the whale which shatters the boat and sends the crew drifting about in mortal peril. It is like the inability of the Bourbons to learn or to forget. It is like the satanic waywardness which cared for nothing between rule and ruin. We are not discouraged by the observation of such folly only because we are certain that it is limited, even at present, by the instinct of self preservation, and because we know that time will make less and less its power for evil, until it disappears altogether.

Nothing is more certain than that the South must have intelligent labor, or become in time a mere desert. It may seem to be a paradox, that a man who can read and write will for that very reason, better cultivate cotton, sugar, rice, and tobacco but it is literally true, and, what is more, it is a truth upon which by far the most prosperous part of the nation has been for two centuries acting with the most prodigious success. The more intelligent the laborer the higher will be his motives, and the more elevated his motives the more steadily and profitably will he work. As a mere matter of economy, how much would Massachusetts ask a day to abolish her public schools? Close and niggardly as she has been called, the gold has not been minted which could tempt her. She shrinks from popular ignorance as she would from pestilence or a famine. Her confidence in popular education as a public safeguard and ornament is no idle and Utopian dream. She has tried the experiment—she began it when she was weak and struggling for political existence, she has carried it on through revolutions and reverses, through peace and war, in the day of great as in the day of small things and she fully comprehends that all she is she owes to the fidelity with which she has excluded ignorance from her borders. Yet with this example, and many others like it, before their eyes, the white folks of Tullahoma are afraid of freedmen's schools? Do they prefer freedmen's jails? freedmen's alms houses? freedmen's hospitals? Do they prefer indolence to industry? indifference to alacrity? stolidity to intelligence? wastefulness to thrift? lawlessness to loyalty? tumult to order? If not let them be chary of burning any more school houses.—New York Tribune.

"MAKING TREASON ODIOUS."—A bill with this title has been reported in the Senate of Missouri. Section 1 provides that no person shall address another who has acquired a title in the rebel service by such title without prefixing the word "rebel." Section 2 provides that any person violating the provisions of the first section shall be fined not less than $10 nor more than $50.

LAWS OF OREGON.

Passed at the Second Special Session of the Legislative Assembly held December 1865.

AN ACT authorizing the erection of Mill Dams and for the support and regulation of Mills.

Be it enacted by the Legislative Assembly of the State of Oregon as follows:

Section 1 That any person owning lands on one or both sides of a stream or water course, and being desirous of building a mill, or erecting other machinery to be propelled by water power on said stream, and of erecting a dam thereon, or of digging a head race or tail race, may have a writ ad quod damnum, to be issued by the clerk of the circuit court of the proper county, to be proceeded on as hereinafter provided.

Sec 2 An applicant for said writ shall file his petition therefor in the office of the clerk of the circuit court, which petition shall set forth the locality with sufficient certainty and also the names of the owners of lands to be affected by such dam or race, as the case may be, and he shall give ten days' notice of said petition by serving a copy thereof on each of said persons, or on his or their agents if to be found, and make proof of such service by affidavit, to be filed with said petition.

Sec 3 The clerk of said court shall thereupon issue said writ, directed to the sheriff of said county, in which the lands proposed to be affected may lie, commanding him to summon twelve good and lawful men, householders of his county, to meet on a certain day upon the land named in said writ, and ten days notice shall be given by the sheriff to the owner or agents aforesaid of the execution of said writ.

Sec 4 The sheriff shall swear the jury impartially and to the best of their skill and judgment, to view the land in said writ described, and the lands both above and below said proposed dam or race, and ascertain and appraise the damages, as by said writ directed, to each of the proprietors of said land proposed to be affected by said dam or race, and also ascertain whether the dwelling house, outhouse, orchard or garden of such proprietor will be overflowed or otherwise injuriously affected, which inquisition shall be signed by the jurors aforesaid, and returned, with the writ aforesaid, to the court whence it issued.

Sec 5 When said inquest shall have been filed, the clerk of the court issuing said writ shall issue a summons to the parties in said inquisition mentioned, to appear on the next term of the circuit court and show cause, if any they have, why leave should not be granted to build said dam or dig said race or races, which notice shall be served and proved as before directed.

Sec 6 If on such inquest it shall appear to said court that neither the dwelling house, outhouse, garden or orchard, or other land of any proprietor will be overflowed or injuriously affected, and if said court shall judge it reasonable, and for the public benefit, license shall be granted to erect the dam, or dig the race or races, on the applicant's paying or tendering to the proper parties the damages decreed by said court from the inquisition aforesaid and if the applicant shall not begin, within one year thereafter to build said dam or dig said race or races, and finish and have in operation said mill or machinery, within three years thereafter and afterwards keep it in good repair, for the accommodation of the public or in case said dam or mill or machinery be destroyed, he shall not begin to repair or re build it in one year, and finish it in three years then the said license shall be forfeited.

Sec 7 The person or persons who shall claim a right, under the provisions of this act, to contract any dam or dig any head or tail race or races, shall keep the said dam, race or races in good repair, and if any damage ensue after the construction of such dam, or race or races either by overflow or by the washing away of the soil composing the banks of such races or otherwise the person or persons claiming such right, shall be liable for all damages arising from such causes.

Sec 8. Provided, That it the writ shall not be executed by the sheriff on the day therein mentioned, said sheriff may, from time to time, appoint a day, at least ten days notice being given to the parties interested as hereinbefore provided, and if the inquest cannot be completed in one day, the sheriff shall adjourn the jury from day to day, until its completion, and if a portion of the lands to be affected be in another county, the sheriff may act notwithstanding, and if the owner of any of the lands to be affected by these proceedings be a minor, service on the guardian shall bind him.

Sec. 9 Any owner of land affected by any proceedings under this act, who may not have been made a party thereto, by reason of want of notice, or from any other cause, may be made a party thereto by summons, at any time thereafter.

Sec 10. The fees of the sheriff jurors and witnesses, under this act, shall be the same as in other cases in the circuit court, and shall in all cases be paid by the applicant.

Sec 11 This act shall apply as well to dams already in existence, to the heightening of the same, and to the enlarging or repairing of races, either above or below the mill, or other machinery, as to those hereafter to be erected.

Sec 12 Where the water backed up by any mill dam belonging to any mill or machinery is in danger of breaking through or covering the banks of the stream, or of washing a channel, so as to turn the water of such stream, or any part thereof, out of its ordinary channel, whereby such mill or machinery will be injured or affected, the owner or occupier of such mill or machinery, if he do not own such banks, or the lands lying contiguous, may, if necessary, enter thereon, and erect and keep in repair such embankments and other works as shall be necessary to prevent such water from breaking through or over the bank or banks of such stream, or washing a channel as afore said, such owner or occupier committing no unnecessary damage or waste thereon.

Sec 13 Nothing in the last section shall be so construed as to bar the owner of such bank or banks, or land lying contiguous thereto, from recovering the amount of any injury which he may actually sustain by the erection or repair of such embankments or other works.

Sec 11 If any person shall injure, destroy or remove any such embankment fortification or other works, the owner or occupier of such mill or machinery may recover of such person all damages he may sustain by reason of such injury, destruction or removal.

Sec. 15. When any mill which is owned by several persons as joint tenants or tenants in common, or the dam or appurtenances of such mill shall need to be repaired or to be re built, in whole or in part, or the race or races shall need to be enlarged or repaired, and the proprietors shall not all agree to join in repairing, re building or enlarging the same as the case may be, the greater part in interest of the proprietors may cause the work to be done at the expense of the whole, in proportion to their respective interests.

Sec. 16. Any one or more of the proprietors may, in such case, call a meeting of the whole of them to be held at the mill, to consult and agree upon the measures to be taken for repairing or enlarging said race or races, or re building the said mill, which meeting shall be called by a written notice signed by the person who called it, and addressed to each of the other proprietors, expressing that the mill in question needs to be repaired or re built or that the dam or race or races need to be enlarged or repaired, and that a meeting of the proprietors thereof will be held at the mill or at some place in the county where the mill is situated, on a certain day and hour mentioned in the notice, to consult and agree upon the measures to be taken for that purpose, and requesting the attendance of such proprietors at such meeting.

Sec 17 The notices required in this act may be served in the manner already mentioned, or by any officer authorized to serve a summons and the certificate of such officer endorsed on a copy of the notice, or the affidavit of such other person annexed thereto, specifying the several persons if more than one on whom he served it, and the time and manner of the service of each shall be deemed sufficient evidence thereof.

Sec 18 The notice shall be served by delivering the original to the person to whom it is addressed, or by leaving such notice at the dwelling house, or at his last and usual place of abode not more than thirty days nor less than seven days before the day appointed for the meeting.

Sec 19 At the meeting so called, or at any adjournment thereof the greater part in interest of the whole body of the proprietors of the mill may take measures to cause the mill or the dam or appurtenances thereto or the race or races to be repaired, rebuilt or enlarged, in such manner as they shall judge most for the interest of all who are concerned therein.

Sec 20 Every proprietor of the mill shall pay his just and equal part of the charge and expense of such repair re building or enlarging in proportion to his share of interest in the mill, which sum shall be paid on demand after the work is completed to the proprietors by whom it shall have been advanced with interest from the time of the advance.

Sec 21 The proprietors, who shall advance the money so expended shall have a lien therefor on the rents and profits of the mill and may retain so much thereof as belongs to any proprietor who is indebted to them for such advance to be applied to the payment of his debt, or they may maintain a suit for such debt or for so much thereof as shall not be paid out of the rents and profits thereof.

Sec 22 When any proprietor is under guardianship as a minor, or otherwise, his guardian may act for him in calling a meeting for the the proprietors, or in attending such meeting, and may vote for the ward, and may do all such other acts in the premises as the ward could do if competent to act for himself, all which shall be binding on the ward and on his estate.

Sec 23 When any part of the mill is held by a married woman, her husband or other manner may represent her, he being thereto authorized by her in writing and appear and act for her at such meeting, and his doings shall have the same effect as if they had been done by her before their marriage.

Sec. 21 When any part of the mill is held by any person as tenant for life or years with remainder or reversion to another person, the sum for repairs and other expenses on the part of the mill, shall be apportioned on the tenant for life or years and on the remainder man or reversioner in proportion to their respective interest in the premises, or as shall be equitable and just and the party to whom the money shall be due from such remainder man or reversioner shall have a lien on the rents and profits belonging to him after his estate shall come into possession, if not sooner paid, notwithstanding any limitation by lapse of time.

Sec 25 Every mortgagee in possession shall be considered a proprietor for all the purposes of this chapter, but the mortgagor shall be also liable for all sums so due on account of his share of the mill, so far as the same is not recovered of the mortgagee. Provided, If an action therefor is brought against the mortgagor before his right of redemption is foreclosed, and all the sums paid by the mortgagee on such account, shall be considered and allowed by the mortgagor as so much added to the mortgage.

Sec 26 All sums due from one proprietor to another for moneys advanced under this chapter, may be recovered in an action at law, and where two or more proprietors are so indebted the creditor or creditors may maintain a suit in chancery against any two or more of them, in which suit the court shall determine what amount is due from each of the debtors severally and shall award execution against each of them accordingly, and shall apportion the amount so recovered among the complainants of such suit if more than one according to their respective rights.

Sec 27 Nothing in this chapter shall make void, or in any way affect any contract or agreement between the proprietors of any mill, as to the repairs or re building thereof.

Sec 28 This act shall not be so construed as to authorize the erection of a dam which the jury shall believe would back the water up upon a mill already in process of construction so as to injuriously affect the same.

Sec 29 Every miller occupying and using a custom mill or grist mill, shall be provided with scales and weights or a vibrating steelyard, to weigh grain, flour and meal, delivered at, or taken from the mill if required and if he shall neglect to keep himself so provided or shall refuse so to weigh grain, flour or meal, when required by any person delivering or taking away the same he shall forfeit for each neglect or refusal, not less than one dollar, nor more than five dollars to the use of the common school fund.

Sec 30 The toll for grinding grain, for bolting the same when so ground, shall, for a steam mill, not exceed one-seventh for grinding grain, and for bolting the same when so ground and for other mills, one-eighth of the grain so ground and bolted nor shall the toll for grinding without bolting exceed one-tenth of the grain so ground, Provided, That nothing contained in this section shall be so construed as to allow any other toll to be charged for preparing any grain for grinding and bolting, or otherwise manufactured, Provided, That the provisions of this section shall apply only to the custom work of the mill, and Provided, further, That no miller shall be obliged to grind any diseased or smutty grain.

Sec 31 The owner or occupier of any grist mill, whether propelled by steam or by water, shall well and sufficiently grind the grain brought to his mill for that purpose, in due time, and in the order or turn in which it shall be received, for each, as he comes and he shall be accountable for the safe keeping of all grain received in such mill for being ground therein, and shall deliver the same when ground, or ground and bolted as the case may be, with the bag or cask in which it was brought, when demanded; but every owner or occupant of a mill may grind his own grain at any time.

Sec 32. Nothing contained in the last section shall be construed as to charge the owner or occupant of any mill for the loss of any grain, bag or cask, which shall happen by fire or inevitable accident, without the fault of such owner or occupant, his agent or servants.

Sec 14 Every miller, or owner or occupant of a grist mill, who shall not well and sufficiently grind any grain as aforesaid, or not in due time, as the same shall be brought, or who shall exact or take more toll than is herein allowed, shall in every such case be liable to the party injured for all actual damages sustained thereby, and he shall also be subject to a fine of not less than five, nor more than ten dollars, to the use of the common school fund to be recovered before any justice of the peace.

Sec 34 No miller, owner or occupant of a mill, shall be liable for the loss of any sack or cask that is not marked with at least the initials of the christian name, and the whole of the surname of the owner.

Sec 35. Section 3 of this act shall not be so construed as to prevent the taking of water in a race to propel any mill or other machinery any necessary distance from the banks of said stream, Provided, That there is not, at the time, any other machinery propelled by water lower down or higher up on said stream, to the injury of said mill or other machinery, Provided, further, That nothing in this act shall be so construed as to interfere with the ownership or right to any mill site or water power, race, flume or dam, which any person would have under the common law, irrespective of this act.

Approved, December 19, 1865.

THE STANDARD

AMERICAN BILLIARD TABLES!

AND COMBINATION CUSHIONS

MESSRS. PHELAN & COLLENDER

WOULD RESPECTFULLY CALL THE ATTENTION of persons wanting Billiard Tables to the great superiority of the above tables, manufactured exclusively at their establishment.

At the Billiard Congress (1863, composed of all the first class players of America, it was unanimously resolved that tables of our manufacture should be used at all matches for the Championship as the best and only reliable tables.

These Billiard Tables have received the unqualified approval of the best players and most competent judges, who have universally pronounced them unequaled for general excellence and durability.

Seven distinct patents for improvements in Billiard Tables have been granted to us by the United States Patent Office, and we have lately obtained a Patent from the French Government, for our improvement in Billiard Cushions.

We employ in the construction of our tables, a variety of machinery specially made for the purpose, by means of which we are enabled to insure a scientific and mechanical accuracy hitherto unknown in Billiard manufacture.

Having a long experience and thorough knowledge of all the appliances of Billiards, and constantly on hand a large stock of the best and most thoroughly seasoned materials we are prepared to furnish everything required in the Billiard line with unprecedented dispatch.

The eminent French Billiard Player M Berger has published the following opinion:

"NEW YORK, 26 August 1861

On the eve of leaving the United States, I am happy to declare to all amateurs of Billiards that, after a tour of eleven months through the principal cities, I have been enabled to judge in a satisfactory manner of the superiority of the Billiard Tables manufactured by Phelan & Collender. The system of manufacturing is so superior that I am happy to introduce their style of cushion into France. They have united to their manufacture of American Billiard Tables that of the French Tables, of remarkable excellence and beauty. For those reasons I am happy to make this declaration.

BERGER, CLAUDIUS

Prof of Billiards, Paris."

Parties ordering from us will find our prices as low as good work can possibly be made for. We sell first class articles at a fair price, and will not make an inferior article at any price.

Orders by mail carefully and promptly executed. Illustrated Catalogues and Price Lists sent by mail. The "BILLIARD CUE," a journal published in the interest of Billiards, and containing details of all novelties, a copious record of Billiard news and everything of interest to amateurs of Billiards sent free on application.

M. E. HUGHES,

730 Montgomery St, San Francisco Cal, is our only authorized Agent on the Pacific coast, to whom all orders should be addressed.

ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM!

The Remedy for Curing

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS, Asthma, Croup,

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC, SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration, and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect, that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS' TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION! IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time.

Sold by all Druggists. Price $1 per bottle.

The stooping trembling victim of depression and debility becomes a new man; he stands erect, he moves with a firm step, his mind, which was previously sunk in gloom of an almost idiotic apathy, becomes bright and active; and he goes forth regenerated, conscious of new vigor. The medicine reaches the CONSTITUTION itself, and restores it to its normal condition.
